Protecting Pensions Is Pivotal to Excellence in Government:
Statement of Hank H. Kim, NCPERS

Washington, D.C. – The following is a statement by Hank H. Kim, executive director and counsel of the National Conference on Public Employee Retirement Systems, in response to a Center for State and Local Government Excellence issue brief, “How Have Pension Cuts Affected Public Service Competitiveness?”

“Excellence in government is built on a foundation of hiring talented and committed public servants. The steady erosion of public pension benefits is bound to have a negative impact on hiring, as the center’s study demonstrates. Americans cannot afford a scenario in which critical public safety and public service jobs go begging because governments made short-sighted decisions that cheapened the contributions of workers. Public pensions deserve our steady support.”

NCPERS regularly publishes research examining the economic and societal impact of public pensions. This research has underscored how public pensions provide economic benefits to communities and the economy at large, at little to no cost to taxpayers.
